
United Planet launches Web-based Document Management Application for Medium-Sized Businesses

London, 13 November 2008. United Planet (www.unitedplanet.com), a leading developer of Enterprise Portal software in Europe, has launched Intrexx Xtreme Document Management as the first in a series of ready-to-use, web-based Power Applications to help companies implement new projects quickly and cost-effectively.

Commenting on the launch, Alexander Marsch, managing director of United Planet Limited, said: “Large-scale document management systems (DMS) tend to be very expensive and have lengthy implementation times. Many companies have not been able to afford an investment in a large-scale DMS solution to date. United Planet’s web-based Document Management application is not a direct competitor for these solutions but it does offer a reasonably priced alternative for mid-sized companies that would like to take a more formal and fast approach to document management.”

Intrexx Xtreme Document Management centralises storage and access for all documents via a single Enterprise Portal. The dedicated user management system enables the administrator to define exactly which employees can place documents on the portal, and sets clear rules for editing and rights for access throughout the company. Before any documents are released, they are run through a release process that has also been previously defined by the administrator.

Integrating document management into an Enterprise Portal will enable companies to improve a variety of business processes by incorporating documents into different workflows and applications used across the organisation.

“The new series of ready-to-use Power Applications will enable more organisations to benefit from solutions that have previously been out of reach. We are confident that Intrexx Xtreme Document Management will be well received by medium sized companies and plan to introduce other Power Applications in the near future,” commented Marsch.
